Reports on the Jews Apprehended in Warsaw During May–July 1943 Submitted by the ‘Praga’ District of the Polish Police

It is not easy to find the original documentation of the Polish Police of the General Government proving the participation of that formation in the persecution of the Jews. This is because the overwhelming majority of that material was destroyed, while the rest became dispersed among different archives. The situation is relatively good with regard to Warsaw, where a large number of the traces of that activity have survived. The materials prepared by the various structures of the Polish underground organisations describe numerous operations conducted by the 'blue' policemen and include the duplicates of the original documents.¹ Mentions of the policemen also appeared in many Holocaust survivors' testimonies. Nonetheless, one is far from having the full picture of the anti-Jewish activity of the Polish Police in Warsaw. Aside from the files of the postwar investigations and trials under the August decree, where the defendants were Polish Police functionaries, and which still await thorough research and which until recently had been unavailable to researchers, it is necessary to access the documentation stored in archives, which have only partially been introduced into scholarly circulation. As for the original police materials from the occupation period, one should mention the files of the investigations into the 'Jewish cases' conducted by the Warsaw policemen, which have survived in the archives of the Warsaw Special Court (Sondergericht Warschau) or the German Court (Deutsches Gericht). The files of the German public prosecution service of the Warsaw Sondergericht are also valuable. In all these three institutions the Polish policemen conducted preliminary investigations against the Jews, who in some way had broken the law, thus ‘threatening the vital interests of the German nation’ (to use the terminology from that period). The ‘blue’ policemen acted by order of and for the German authorities – usually regarding violations of the ‘armband act’, leaving the ghetto without an armband, smuggling, theft, or illegal slaughter, trade, or foreign exchange operations. What those investigations have in common is their chronological framework. The investigations conducted by the Polish policemen commenced as early as in 1939 and discontinued during the great deportation campaign in the summer of 1942, when,– as known from elsewhere,– the German courts ceased dealing with the Jews and ceded their jurisdiction to the Gestapo.

The archive of Department II of the Polish Police, which is a part of the State Archive of the City of Warsaw, includes not only other documents about the functioning of the Polish Police, but also a collection of unique materials regarding the capturing of the Jews, who were in hiding on the territory of the ‘Praga’ District of the Polish Police immediately after the end of the uprising in the ghetto. The ‘Praga’ District was one of the four districts of the Polish Police, which matched the area of the pre-war municipal district administrations: ‘Centre’, ‘North’, ‘South’, and ‘Praga’.2 In 1943, the structure of the Warsaw police comprised 21 police stations, 2 railway police stations, and 1 riverside police station. The ‘Praga’ District comprised police stations number XIV (Wileńska Street 11), XV (Jagiellońska Street 9), XVII (Grochowska Street 172), XVIII (Kartuska Street 1), XXIV (Tytkocińska Street 16), XXV, Railway Police Station II (at the Eastern Railway Station), and the Riverside Police Station (Wybrzeże Helskie Street 64).3

The first published document is dated 10 December 1942. Signed by Warsaw District SS and Police Leader Ferdinand von Sammern-Frankenegg, this ordinance applies to the police procedures of handling escapees from the ghetto. The Polish Police Department in Warsaw received that order on 21 December.4 That was the document that contained the directive with the far reaching consequences: “the Jews encountered outside the Jewish residential quarter without permission are to be executed on the spot without any investigation.” This order is followed by the reports prepared by the chiefs of four Polish Police stations (XIV, XV, XVII, XVIII), the River Police Station, and Railway Police Station II, and the monthly statements specifying the number of the Jews captured during 23 May–22 July 1943, signed by Major Wnękiewicz, the Chief of the ‘Praga’ district of the Polish Police. During the said period Wnękiewicz reported the apprehension of 30 Jews and discovery of 3 Jewish corpses (the reports provide the personal data of only 5 of those apprehended in July; see document I/4).

3 Ibidem, p. 214. Police Stations III, IV and V were liquidated after the establishment of the ghetto.

4 This document was quoted in Adam Hempel’s work (Pogrobowcy kłęski. Rzecz o policii „granatowej” w Generalnym Gubernatorstwie 1939–1945 [Warsaw: PWN, 1990], pp. 176–177), but without the detailed reports and with a comment that “the Polish Police was engaged in that criminal activity only to a small degree.” The purported proof was the “insignificant number” of the apprehended Jews.
The second portion of the presented materials consists of 29 reports prepared by the chiefs of the individual police stations (XIV, XV, XVII, XVIII, XXIV, XXV, the River Police Station, and Railway Police Station I), 2 reports prepared by the Chief of the ‘Praga’ District of the Polish Police between 10 and 28 June 1943, and 2 reports of 1944. Those reports contain more detailed data, including the surnames and addresses of the victims and the data of the intervening policemen. The first Jews included in those reports were apprehended on 1 May. According to the report sent by the ‘Praga’ District Chief to the Polish Police Chief (document II/9), during that month 16 Jews were arrested and 3 dead ones and 1 severely wounded one were found. As is known from other sources, those were members of the Jewish Fighting Organisation (Żydowska Organizacja Bojowa, ŻOB) who were hiding in the celluloid factory on 11 Listopada Street in the Praga quarter of Warsaw. Among them was Tosia Altman, one of the leading activists of Hashomer Hatzair.

During 1 May–28 June 1943, the number of the identified Jews arrested in the ‘Praga’ District amounted to 22 (many of them had ‘Aryan’ surnames), and there were also 4 unidentified victims. The arrests were conducted by 21 policemen from 7 police stations. Police station XXIV was the only one that reported no arrests of Jews.

The total number of the Jews arrested in the ‘Praga’ District of the Polish Police during 1 May–22 July 1943 and recorded in the documents is as follows:
1 May–22 May – 10 victims,
23 May–23 June – 20 victims,

Consequently, the total number of the apprehended individuals amounted to 43 (the materials presented contain 33 surnames, many of them ‘Aryan’). There is no record of any Jews executed by the policemen.

The last two documents regard the apprehension of three individuals by policemen from police stations XIV and XV in the summer of 1944. This is but a small part of the anti-Jewish activity of the policemen from the said police stations. According to the texts from other files, the policemen also blackmailed Jews and attempted extortions. Several of them were even sentenced for that illicit activity. Consequently, the formula included in the preambles to the police reports informing that “the apprehended Jews had no property” appears somewhat characteristic in that context. There is also no doubt that the policemen did not notify their superiors about all the discovered Jews. It is difficult to estimate the number of the escapees from the ghettos killed by the Polish Police.

5 Antoni Kołomoński and Andrzej Szlęzak from Police Station XVII were sentenced to nine months’ imprisonment. Henryk Kluska from the Riverside Police Station was suspected of blackmailing Jews. His colleague Stanisław Łuczyński was arrested for the same thing in February 1943 and detained in the Pawiai prison (he was reinstated in April 1944) (Archiwum Państwowe w Warszawie [State Archive in Warsaw, later APW], 1710, file 5).
members, most of whom were motivated by robbery. This issue requires further search queries in the occupation-period and postwar documentation.

The presented documents constitute an important source in the research on the occupation-period history of the Warsaw Jews. They are also a highly important and unique material for the research on the participation of the Polish Police in the anti-Jewish operations. As for the Warsaw county, there are also available reports of the German gendarmerie platoon in the Warsaw district administration for February–September 1943, which contain figures regarding the number of the apprehended and murdered Jews as well as information about the cooperation with the local Polish Police. These materials have not been used to the full extent either.6

At the end, it should be said that the police documents published here interestingly match the materials produced by the Polish Police in occupied Lvov.7

Pursuant to the police ordinance regarding the establishment of the Jewish residential quarters in the Warsaw and Lublin Areas of 28 October 1942 (OBJ. GG. p. 665) the resettlement of the Jews shall be concluded by 30 November 1942. As per § 2 of this ordinance no Jew is allowed to stay outside a Jewish residential quarter or leave it without police permission. The Jews employed in production plants or armament factories and placed in closed camps are exempt from the obligation to stay in a Jewish residential quarter.

Under § 3 the Jews who fail to comply with the provisions of § 2 shall be punished by death.

Consequently, the Jews encountered outside a Jewish residential quarter without permission are to be executed without any investigation. The same pertains to the Jews apprehended during operations against gangs. The gendarmerie platoon commanders, who are to ensure the strictest possible execution of this order, shall receive suitable instructions.

By the 30th day of every month I am to be informed about the number of the Jews executed pursuant to this ordinance.

Warsaw, 10 June 1943

¹⁹ A group of activists from the Jewish Fighting Organization (Żydowska Organizacja Bojowa, ŻOB) who had managed to leave the ghetto were hiding in the attic of the celluloid factory at 11 Listopada Street 10. Appropriately remunerated, its owners put the object at the Jews’ disposal. The fire started by accident. A fire brigade and police arrived at the scene. The memoirs mention the date of 24 May (for instance, Cywia Lubetkin, Zagłada i powstanie, trans. Maria Krych [Warsaw: Książka i Wiedza, 1999], p. 144). On the basis of Hela Rufeisen-Schüpper’s testimony (Pożegnanie Milej 18. Wspomnienia łączniczki Żydowskiej Organizacji Bojowej [Cracow: Beseder, 1996]), who was also hiding there, Anka Grupińska (Odczytanie listy. Opowieści o warszawskich powstańcach Żydowskiej Organizacji Bojowej [Wołowiec: Czarne, 2014], p. 25) enumerates eight people who died then: Zosia, Mosze Szarfstajn, Zygi [Sigi] Kiršzenbojm [Kirschner], Marek Majerowicz, Ikek Morgenlender, Mania Grajek, Tasia Altman, and Szyfra [Stenia] Sokółka. Eliezer Geller and Meir Szwarc managed to escape. According to that testimony, Tasia and Stenia died of the wounds they sustained.
Pursuant to order 3527 of 9 June 1943 I hereby submit the list of the rank-and-file policemen who since 1 May 1943 have apprehended Jews who had no property and escorted them [to the SD].
